

COVID-19

Dear Clients,

On Wednesday evening, President Trump suggested that the IRS will delay upcoming tax deadlines. However, the IRS has not yet made any official announcement as to what deadlines will be extended or who will be eligible.

Our firm is committed to working with our clients in order to meet the existing deadlines and are continuing to monitor the situation daily.

If the upcoming deadlines are delayed, it will be meant to provide relief to taxpayers that may have been impacted by recent events. All clients have access to our online portal (www.rosendentalcpa.com), e-filing, and e-signatures to minimize any interruptions. We expect to continue to be able to file returns, or extensions, by the April 15th due date.

At this time, we request that you do not physically drop off information off at our office. Therefore, we request that you either mail/fedex, email or upload your information onto our secure portal. Feel free to then follow up with an email to ensure it was received. If you have trouble or need help uploading information to our portal, please email rosen@rosencpagroup.com.

As the landscape changes, we will send additional information about this and any other tax changes when the information is available.

As the COVID-19 virus expands globally, we must all anticipate its effects locally. Over the last several years, Rosen & Associates has invested in technology that allows our staff the capability to work remotely, while still being efficient and productive and ensuring uninterrupted client service. Given all of the recent news, we have encouraged our staff, both for their health and the health of others, to utilize our cloud capabilities and work from home.

During this time, we would like all of our clients to know that the Rosen & Associates staff will continue to meet all of your accounting and tax needs. We encourage you to communicate with us via email, however phone messages will still be returned in a timely fashion.

If you have any questions or concerns at this time, please do not hesitate to reach out to us.

Sincerely,

Rosen & Associates
